

SNOWSHOEING.
COLD WEATHER FUN IN THE NORTHWEST.

For all winter sports, snowshoeing bids fair to become the most popular within the past two years it has obtained first foothold in the Northern States and is now receiving an unusual amount of attention. In fact it is at all its points snowshoeing is without a doubt the ideal exercise during the cold season because it offers such a multitude of advantages over the cold weather sports. While skating will invariably find favor with a large number of people and has its never failing delights, it is always handicapped by the serious drawback of being confined to a very limited space when compared with snowshoeing. For good skating there must also be a very hard and smooth surface of ice, however slight, makes the ice too soft for good sport and a snowfall following a spell of mild weather utterly spoils the ice so far as skating is concerned.

a pair of the snowshoes, which, although they are but about four inches wide and never more than an inch thick, vary in length from eight to eighteen feet. At first the beginner will need a small stick to keep the balance and to use in pushing himself along, but this can soon be dispensed with, even when sliding down a steep incline. It is best to begin on a perfectly level surface and to use only very moderate speed. Should the snowshoes get tangled up and the feet disolve partneship, so to speak, do not be discouraged, but plod along and the art of snowshoeing is conquered. In fastening the snowshoes to the foot care should be taken to have the foot firmly secured and still allow the heel to rise from the shoe with perfect freedom. The beginner must avoid lifting his know themselves the denning of the knee braces. A short sack coat of corduroy completes the costume, the individuality of the wearer being exhibited in the tie, which may be as colorful as he chooses. The cap is of seal skin, which is becoming popular, and is worn by many of the women wearers as well as many of the men. There is a great stir made down East to receive and improve the somewhat obsolete but still withal delightful sport of skating with sail attachment. This pastime is somewhat dangerous, and the skaters are advised to wear knee caps for large knees. Members of the sail skating clubs are now considering a great many improved models for these sails, with a view of regulating the sizes to be certain. The most popular model for the sails used at present is the "A" or "rag" type, which is made out extremely light and tough wood. Many of them have a contrivance by which the skater can take in or let out a reef as the case demands. Another style offered is provided with a light pole which serves as a drag, used to pull the skater back toward the starting line.

cock (to) or chicken (to) speed. The bird is not required to carry even a moderate sized sail, but the larger the sail the more exciting the sport. Splendid strength in wings and arms is an indispensable qualification for an skimmer. The skimmer is a quick-footed fowl. Few who have not indulged in this delightful sport can realize the tremendous speed attained even in a very moderate breeze, or of the difficulty in handling a sail as it is blown. The skimmer is the most exacting of sports. There are few prettier sights to be seen on a bright, cold, winter day than a flotilla of skaters with their snow-white sails bobbing before a stiff breeze on the water. The skimmer is the most graceful of the water sports.

It can be safely asserted that of all known modes of locomotion sailing skates comes nearest to flying than any thing hitherto attempted. The only serious drawback to its indulgence is that it requires a good deal of space and that ordinary skaters can scarcely take any comfort where these living yachts are flying about, as a collision

An entirely new feature, from which its novelty and simplicity of construction is bound to derive its popularity, is the use of a running sledge that is intended to supplement the snowshoes. It can be used on any snow-covered surface, as well as on the ice whenever the foot meets with resistance. For people who have a disinclination to use skates or snowshoes the kick of the sledge is a decided advantage. It is adapted to men, women and children, and does not require the slightest preparatory skill in its use. There is no danger from breaking through the ice, as each runner is from six to eight feet long. The person who uses it need feel no alarm when he comes in contact with ice on his right or left foot, stands with one foot on one of the runners and does some lively kicking with his prodded foot. In Sweden, from which country this new feature is reported, it is termed to use by the farmers in carrying small loads to the woods. The sledge is made of wood. Tomists are also very fond of this means of locomotion and on a fair surface at least thirteen miles an hour can easily be covered. By many it is called the ice bicycle, being controlled by skating of breaking through the ice and getting an ice-cold bath or being drowned. If the ground is level the snowshoe runner can make splendid time, and is able to cover immense distances with but very little exertion. Indeed, it is claimed by the devotees to this sport that it is the ideal exercise for everybody, young and old, of both sexes. In Minnesota, Wisconsin and elsewhere there are a great number of snowshoe clubs, all in the most flourishing condition. In the last tournament at Red Wing, a young Norwegian captured the prize

THE DUNSMORE BUSINESS COLLEGE

An Institute of Shorthand.

Staunton, Virginia.

Is not an experiment, nor is it in the infancy. It has lived for 22 years and sent to the world a great number of more young men than all the other business colleges of the U. S. Virginia combined. Its proprietor charges a fair and reasonable compensation for the training it gives, and offers no premium for idleness. Our rates are $20 for eight months. If a pupil remains longer than eight months - a charge him 75 per month extra thereafter. If he graduates in less than eight months, - we will deduct $25 per month for the unexpired time. Thus it can be seen that we do not offer any inducement to waste time and money, but on the other hand we do offer an inducement to save both time and money by completing the course inside eight months. After graduation - a give two weeks gratis in Typewriting, Shorthand, or stenography, as the graduate may elect, and a life Scholarship granting the holder the privilege to return and review his whole course at any future time, gratis. Our penman, Prof. A. A. Ballentine, formerly professor of Grand Rapids, Mich. Business College is an artist of rare ability and an expert Shorthand and Typewriter. Prof. Dunsmore is giving his special attention to the Theory and Practical Departments this session. 25 years ACTUAL experience has made him thoroughly master of his work. He is a member of the Institute of Accountants of New York city and through this organization and the agency of old graduates holding positions in large cities, he is enabled to aid his graduates to lucrative employment. A FREE HINT.

To buy goods at a low cost is one thing, and more important thing to buy a piece of goods you have never seen from a dealer's store, is another thing. But if goods bought with good cash, then my business was not hindered I determined to be a leader both in quality and get and to this end bought very large quantities of goods for special prices by effecting a saving of about 10 to 20 per cent to my customers, and meeting a well known grade of merchandise. RARE RAVES.

Recently it was the writer's pleasure to make a journey to Wheeling, the metropolis of West Virginia, where he was welcomed as one of the body assembled there designated as the West Virginia Editorial Association. The representative of this paper was the only newspaper man from the southeastern portion of the State, but still the meeting was well attended generally.

Great kindness was shown the visitors by the business men of the city. On the first day Mr. Schumback, a great brewer, extended the courtesy of the Mozart Park, where the festive editors were regaled with Schumback's justly celebrated beer and a knife and fork tea. Returning to the city attendance at the Opera House was in order where those with a taste for music enjoyed the performance of "Sons of the Band." While this may be called a brass band, yet the beautiful music told you tales and conjured up stirring scenes. "The Holy War," as rendered by this band, is to be remembered especially. Even in the latter day Opera House at Wheeling "The Trampets sound" and warlike symphony is heard around.

On the second day of the "meet" the business of the order was transacted, the great event being a speech from the Hon. Stuart F. Reed, of the Clarksburg Telegram, President of the Association. In the beginning he appeared to be some two stories high and of commanding presence, but as he proceeded so eloquently he dilated and towered above the assembly till he was "cleared out of sight."

In the afternoon, the great event of the occasion took place, when the editors enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Raymond, the millionaire brewer, at Wheeling Park, the prettiest spot by far in Wheeling. At the banquet in the evening in one of the beautiful summer houses in the park, the hungry editors were filled and toasted resplendently by many brilliant West Virginians. Mr. Raymond belongs to that class of Germans, who are undoubtedly the support financially of the business of Wheeling. The writer had the opportunity of meeting a good many of these prominent Germans, and found them all true, kindly gentlemen, who had the interest of their city at heart. Mr. H. F. Behrens, the famous grocerman, taught us a lesson in simple geography, which was the names in their proper order of the three most important cities in the world, namely: "Wheeling, New York, and Hamburg."

From the banquet adjournment was made to the theatre where Hoyts "A Trip to Chinatown" was rendered in very amusing style. We are indebted, indeed, for this performance as it made us laugh to such a wonderful extent that it most have cleared away the mental mists, that is so apt to infect one's life.

The next day the B. & O. put two coaches at our disposal and in this style we journeyed to Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh is a very fine city but as it is not in West Virginia we are not so much concerned about it. We would be very ungrateful though and to acknowledge the kindness of the Press of that city, and the courtesy extended in the invitation to witness the baseball game in which Cleveland defeated Pittsburgh in the afternoon, and in the evening to attend the performance at the Adelphi theatre of

Mr. Murray's justly celebrated comic opera "Hearts and Hands."

A trip through West Virginia well repays one in the magnificent scenery, alone. Leaving Wheeling in the afternoon, the journey to Grafton is uneventful. Probably the most interesting part of the road is the Manfington oil field with its innumerable black, greasy oil derricks dotting the country. At Fairmont all the tracks are full of cars loaded with coal, as the strikes elsewhere put double work on the mines near this town. The Monongahela is reached here, and the ascent of the one prong of the one prong of the river begins. In May marked changes in the vegetation is to be noticed as you get higher and higher and the oak trees at the headwaters are barely showing signs of life, while the oaks of Fairmont are in full leaf.

At Beverly the humble citizen of Marlinton finds that the rails that had seemed interminable have broken off, and he has a drive of fifty seven miles to make to reach his inland town. However, this is a thing to be accomplished by steady perseverance, and the whole country is interesting, the first thirty miles lie through the beautiful Tygart's Valley. Then comes the Tugue river country suggestive of Pocahontas county, and soon this county is reached, and it always looks good to one who has traveled in whatever direction he has gone. If it were not for this fact that our county can stand the test when compared with any other, life would be unendurable so far from the rail road.

The writer at Marlinton completes the journey taken by the editor of this paper to see what his companions in misery are like, and he can tell you that to see West Virginia is not the cheapest show in the world, however pleasant the excursion may be. Pittsburgh is as bad as West Virginia, by the way. So here we rest and take up the threads of Pocahontas county life again.

FORWARDED BY REQUEST OF A PROMINENT REPUBLICAN.

NO. EUGENE ELLIOTT.

The many friends of Hon. Eugene Elliott are pushing him to the front as a candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket. While the general havoc wrought by the McKinley tariff is being so severely felt it seems to be a bad time for Republicans to have Congressional aspirations, and that the Third Congressional District is one in which no inducement is held out for Republican success even when other things are favorable, yet as a good man is required for the sacrifice we know of no one who could undergo the ordeal with more fortitude than Judge Elliott.

Judge Elliott is a gentleman of fine attainments and is personally a splendid gentleman. He has a host of friends in both parties, and we believe him to be the strongest man in the Republican party in the District. We hope he will be honored with the nomination, for we would then feel assured, even if some five thousand Democrats in the District would stay at home on election day, that we would have a gentleman in Congress who would represent fairly the interests of the people. - Logan County Banner.

What Are We Coming To?

An "over Chicago" on given the whole world.

There has been some time in that city's history when confusion and strife were made life to labor circles than just now.

The Central Employers' League have resolved on a lockout against the Building Trades Union. This not only threatens a stop to all building in that city but throws thirty thousand men out of the means of livelihood and not paying rent is threatened by way of retaliation.

A wise and eloquent lecturer, a few weeks since, made this remark: "The great trouble now with all the reforms that are before the people is that the people who ought to hear do not hear. It is that one side is heard in a 'directors' meeting and the other side is heard in a labor lodge."

The two sides not only do not get together and talk, but they have come to a point where they will not hear."

How well would it be were that "Power from on high" to lead both sides to "look not every man on his own things, but also on the things that pertain to the good of others."

It looks as if a crisis was at hand bringing in a new era in the affairs of men. One of the most significant events in human history was the overthrow of Jerusalem. Josephus states that just previous to that occurrence "every city was divided into two camps." "Civil commotions were life in those days especially between the Jews and their neighbors." One of the most disturbing influences was the presence of a dominating foreign element.

Killing an Elephant.

On last Friday, "Tip" the dangerous elephant in the Central Park menagerie in New York city, that had killed at different times seven men and wounded several others, was killed by the administration of cyanide of potassium. It was with great difficulty they succeeded. They first gave a dose to him at 6 o'clock in the morning concealed in a carrot, but he only got a sufficient quantity to nauseate him, as he discovered it and blew it out of his mouth. It was afterwards tried by putting the capsules into apples and peanut shells, but he rejected them after holding them awhile in his trunk. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he had recovered from the sickness caused by the poison he had got in the carrot, and was hungry, he was fooled by a ball of moist bran in which there were three ounces of cyanide of potassium, and after 12 minutes of great suffering in which he broke the chain by which he was bound, he was dead. His height was 94 feet and his weight 3,500 lbs. His age was 28 years. Then the labor of skinning him commenced. His skin will be stuffed for exhibition in the American Museum of Natural History, and the skeleton will be mounted for the museum.

GYPSIES.

Some days ago a party of Gypsies passed through Marlinton, presenting the usual appearance characteristic of this people.

This strange people are found every-where in the world and have no fixed abode. There is reason to believe that they are descendants of Ishmael, son of Abraham, and the legend tells of Hagar. A German pamphlet made in 1822 shows that the Gypsies were known in America three centuries before the supposed date of their appearance in that country. In reference to Hagar's descendants, Gen. 16:13 a passage reads thus: "So Hagar had this son; they named him Ishmael. It is from him the Ishmaelites descended. They journey far through the world. We call them cold smiths. They have no house nor country. Everywhere they are found alike, abusing people by their knaveries. Thus they deceive men—robbing no one openly." Cold smithing or tinkering is the leading handicraft of this people.

The gypsy character, strange medley of good and evil, presents itself as very objectionable to our sides, while to the gypsies themselves it is all that is fair and lovable.

It is believed that their number does not exceed one million of persons, all told.

Gypsy blood flows in the veins of the Stanleys and the Lees, historic families.

We are having fine weather at writing only a little dry.

Messrs C. J. Elliot and James Patterson are building a large barn for W. A. Gladwell.

V. B. Hiner, the tinner, of Crab-bottom, Va., was in this vicinity last week looking after his interest. Mr. J. M. Heyner of Hightown was here last week.

L. C. Bartlett, the champion painter is painting O. L. Orndorff's house a C. C. Arbogast's store.

Rev. C. L. Potter will hold communion services at the McLaughlin Church on Back Alleyway on the 27th at 10:30 a. m. Also on the same a like service at the Wanless School House at 3 p. m. and will preach at this place at 8 p. m.

The communion service at this place last Sunday was largely attended and Rev. Potter gave us a fine sermon, which is nothing strange for him to do. Mrs. W. H. Hull met with a very painful accident on the 7th inst. While walking in the hay mow, she stepped on a loose board and fell through fracturing her collar bone and resulting in a general shaking up, which has caused her considerable suffering. She is some better now.

Prof. J. A. Taylor conducted singing at this place last Sunday night which was largely attended. Fine singing. Come again Johnnie!

Good working is in order at this time, and corn working will be in a few days. The prospect for a small crop of fruit is good. It was thought for a time that there would be none, but the indications are that there will be fruit on the old-time apple trees. The wheat is looking fine and with a large acreage of corn and oats we may live another year or two despite the hard times.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

State of West Virginia,
County of Pocahontas, ss: I, Attest that in the Clerk's office of the circuit court of said county, on Monday, May 24, 1894,

L. J. WEAUGH, plaintiff
Ella L. WEAUGH (nee Reed), and Ella M. WEAUGH, defendants.

The object of this suit is to enforce a judgment in favor of the plaintiff, against the defendants, Ella L. WEAUGH, and to obtain a decree of sale of said Ella L. WEAUGH's interest in a certain tract or parcel of land situate near Haverly, La. in Pocahontas county, West Virginia, and it appearing by affidavit filed that the defendants, Ella L. WEAUGH, is a non-resident of the State of West Virginia, it is ordered that she is, upon the writ of a writ of summons, to appear in this court, and to show cause why she should not be bound by the judgment of this court, and that she is to appear on the 27th day of May, 1894.

Witness my hand and the seal of the said court, this 24th day of May, 1894.
J. C. ARBOGAST, Clerk.

grows during the day. Sometimes ginkgo droops in bloom or while the young wear a plain silk bodice and skirt. The same dress may be worn over any color and frequently changed. The ginkgo grows, is naturally in flower but falling, in the one dress, with one or two variations, provides an almost complete change of wardrobe.
